

Scrap Metal Dealer Act 2013: guidance on licence fee charges

Context

The Scrap Metal Dealers Act 2013 (referred to in this guidance as the 2013 Act) received Royal Assent on the 28 February 2013, delivering much needed reform of the scrap metal sector. The 2013 Act will provide effective and proportionate regulation of the sector, creating a more robust, local authority run, licensing regime that will support legitimate dealers yet provide the powers to effectively tackle unscrupulous operators. It will raise trading standards across the whole sector.

Introduction

The 2013 Act will allow local authorities to decide who should and should not be licensed, allowing them to refuse a licence upon application or to revoke a licence at any time if they are not satisfied that the applicant is a suitable person to carry on business as a Scrap Metal Dealer. The act also creates closure powers for unscrupulous dealers who operate without a licence. It extends the record keeping requirements placed upon scrap metal dealers and requires the verification of the people Scrap Metal Dealers are transacting with. The act will integrate the separate regulation for motor salvage operators with the scrap metal sector and bring to an end the cash exemption given to some collectors under the 1964 Act.

Finally, the 2013 Act creates a fee raising power, to allow local authorities to recover the costs stemming from administering and seeking compliance with the regime. This element of the legislation will be the focus of this guidance.

The intention is for the act to be implemented in October 2013.

Licensing requirements placed upon scrap metal dealers

Section one of the 2013 Act requires a scrap metal dealer to obtain a licence in order to carry on business as a scrap metal dealer¹. It will be an offence to carry on a business as a scrap metal dealer in breach of the requirement to hold a licence. This offence is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale. In addition, Schedule 1(6) of the 2013 Act provides that an application must be accompanied by a fee set by the authority.

Aim and scope

Local authorities will be responsible for administration and compliance activity in relation to the 2013 Act. This guidance is provided to local authorities in relation to the carrying out of their fee raising function. It also provides information for the benefit of those who will be applying for a scrap metal dealer's licence and the general public. This guidance applies to local authorities in England and Wales and is produced in accordance with the 2013 Act.

Legal status

Schedule 1(6) of the 2013 Act provides that an application must be accompanied by a fee set by the local authority. In setting a fee, the authority must have regard to any guidance issued from time to time by the Secretary of State with the approval of the Treasury. This Guidance is therefore binding on all licensing authorities to that extent.

What costs can local authorities charge for when issuing a licence?

The 2013 Act provides that an application for a licence must be accompanied by a fee set by the local authority. This fee raising power is an essential component of the legislation as it will provide local authorities with the funding they need to administer the regime and ensure compliance.

The power to set fees has been passed to individual local authorities, so that any fees levied in each local area is set by reference to the actual costs to each authority. The EU services directive states that a licence fee can only be used to pay for the cost associated with the licensing process. In effect, each local authority must ensure that the income from fees charged for each service does not exceed the costs of providing the service.

LAs should specify fees for each category of application. Specifically we would expect a fee to be specified for the assessment of an application for a licence, the assessment of an application to vary a licence, and the assessment of an application for licence renewal.

Local authorities should specify fees which are payable by licence applicants for the assessment and administration activity within the new licensing regime brought about by the 2013 Act. They should do this by identifying what they need to do to assess the type of licence in question and calculating their best estimate of the cost to be incurred by the LA. The authority will then be able to calculate a best estimate of unit cost for each case.

In effect, the costs of a licence should reflect the time spent assessing and administering applications, processing them, having experienced licensing officers review them, storing them, consulting on the suitability of an applicant, reviewing relevant offences, the decision on whether to issue a licence, as well as the cost of issuing licences in a format that can be displayed. Consulting the local authority's enforcement records in order to determine the suitability of the applicant is chargeable within the licence fee costs as are costs associated with contested licence applications.

Registering authorities should review fees regularly to check whether they remain appropriate.

Can a local authority charge for enforcement activity?

The licence fee cannot be used to support enforcement activity against unlicensed scrap metal dealers. Any activity taken against unlicensed operators must be funded through existing funds. Such activity against unlicensed operators includes issuing closure notices; with applications for closure orders subsequently made to a magistrates court. The cost of applying to the Magistrates Court for a warrant (Section 16(5)(6) and (7) of the 2013 Act) for entry to unlicensed premises, by force if necessary, will incur legal costs to be borne by the local authority and police.

What are the different types of licences?

There are two types of licence specified within the act, one is for a site licence and the other is for a mobile collector licence (carrying on business otherwise than at a site). The licence authorises the licensee to carry on business as a scrap metal dealer at the sites listed in it (in the case of a site licence) or within the local authority area (in the case of a mobile collector's licence).

Site licences

A site licence requires all of the sites at which the licensee carries on the business as a scrap metal dealer within the local authority area to be identified and a site manager to be named for each site. In doing so, they will be permitted to operate from those sites as a scrap metal dealer, including transporting scrap metal to and from those sites from any local authority area.

Collectors licences

A collector's licence authorises the licensee to operate as a mobile collector in the area of the issuing local authority, permitting them to collect any scrap metal as appropriate. This includes commercial as well as domestic scrap metal.

The licence does not permit the collector to collect from any other local authority area. A separate licence should be obtained from each local authority from which the individual wishes to collect in. A collector's licence does not authorise the licensee to carry on a business at a site within any area. Should a collector wish to use a fixed site, they will need to obtain a site licence from the relevant local authority.

The Act 2013 also specifies that a licence will be issued by the local authority in whose area a scrap metal site is situated, or (in respect of a mobile collector) in the area that the collector operates.

Do different fees apply?

Yes. Fees charged for a site licence would reflect the extra work involved in processing these licences and will vary from a collector's licence.

Display of licences

The form in which a licence is issued must enable it to be displayed in accordance with section ten of the 2013 Act. All licensees are therefore required to display a copy of their licence. For site operators the licence must be displayed in a prominent place in an area accessible to the public. For mobile collectors, it must be in a manner which enables the licence to be easily read by a person outside the vehicle. A criminal offence is committed by any scrap metal dealer who fails to fulfil this requirement. This offence is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale.

The cost of providing a licence in a form which can be displayed should be included in the local authority licence fee charges.

Police objections to licence applications

The police may object to a licence application where they believe that the applicant is not a suitable person as defined within the act. The police can object where, for example, the applicant has been convicted of a relevant offence. LAs should also consider representations from other organisations or individuals in considering the applicant's suitability

Where the police do object, the local authority should take this into consideration but must use their own judgement and discretion when taking a licence decision. The local authority must allow for the person whose licence is about to be refused or revoked to be afforded the right to make representations. The local authority considering the matter must restrict its consideration to the issue of suitability of applicant and provide comprehensive reasons for its decision.

Costs associated with considering oral and written representations should be included in licence fee charges.

Appeals

There is a right of appeal to the Magistrates' Court against a decision to refuse a licence application, to include a condition within the licence, to revoke the licence or to vary the licence. The costs associated with appeals and the costs of defending an appeal in the Magistrate Court should not be included in licence fee charges.

The costs associated with defending a Judicial Review into whether the local authority has failed to have regard to the guidance on fees is not chargeable under the licence regime.

Revocation of a licence and formulating and imposing licence conditions

If a licence has been granted, it may be revoked or licence conditions imposed on a scrap metal dealer if the subsections within Clause 4 of the Scrap Metal Dealers Act are triggered. A local authority may impose conditions pending an appeal against revocation (section 4 (7)) or if the applicant or site manager has been convicted of a relevant offence (section 3 (8)).

Variation of licence

Schedule 1 paragraph 3(1) indicates that a local authority may, on an application, vary a licence by changing it from one type to another and (2) if there is a change in any of the matters mentioned in section 2(4)(a), (c) or (d) or (6)(a).

These changes should be recorded by the local authority. The applicant is also under a duty to notify any convictions for relevant offences to the local authority. These measures ensure that a single record will be held of the licence holder's history in terms of licensing matters.

National Register of Scrap Metal Dealers

Whilst a local authority can recover any costs incurred in transmitting information about a licence, the costs which the Environment Agency incurs are not chargeable under the licence regime.

How long will a licence be valid for?

Schedule 1 paragraph 1 of the 2013 Act specifies the terms of a licence. It indicates that a licence expires at the end of the period of 3 years beginning with the day on which it is issued.

Additional regulations and guidance

The Home Office will be publishing regulations in relation to relevant offences and the identification required to sell scrap metal over the summer of 2013. These regulations will be published on www.gov.uk. We will also be working with the Local Government Association, the British Metal Recycling Association and British Transport Police to produce additional guidance on the requirements of the new act.

The Local Government Association guidance will include a breakdown of reasonable timescales for each of the activities associated with setting a fee.
